MOBILIZATION OF FULL ARMY ON RESERVE IS PLANNED

4,000,000 Fighting Men Would Be Available For Service

NO EXPENSES CONTEMPLATED

Organized Reserve Can Be Employed Only By Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Congressional plans for creation of the organized reserve of the army on a basis to permit quick mobilization of more than four million fighting men have been prepared by the general staff. An outline of the preliminary steps was made public today.

The plan, which was developed under authority of Congress, contemplates virtually no expenditures in its present stages, yet in the opinion of Major-General Harbord, acting chief of staff, would furnish framework for mobilization of the nation in arms in a matter of weeks.

Twenty-seven infantry divisions of the reserve army are provided for, numbering from the 76th to the 102nd, preserving both in number and geographical location where each originated, the sixteen national divisions.

The same territorial distribution as to arms and army corps are followed in the regular army organization and the structure of the national guard. The result will be to establish the three arms of the national defense forces on identical basis with control decentralized from Washington for all three into the hands of the corps area commanders.

The first step perfecting the organization of the reserve army is to assign to the present officers reserve corps to the 27 reserve divisions, the full strength complement of officers, in all more than 40,000. It is expected that this will be completed by July when the creation of the organized reserve is completed, involving the selection of many thousands of men and their assignment to regiments.

It was understood that the organized reserve can be employed only by specific act of Congress. At present there is no thought that the division ever will be called out except in a national emergency and the plans were prepared only to prevent delays and huge emergency expenditures in mobilization. The active fighting force remains the skeleton of the regular army, the national guard subject to constitutional limitations as to its employment as the second line of defense and with organized reserve as the third and vital reserve for assignment for graduates in the skeleton reserve divisions.

Officers believe it will give added impetus to the civilian training camps and the reserve officers' training corps in schools and colleges to the delivery of the bodies to the general staff.

DECIDE PEACE TREATIES NOT PARTY ISSUE

Individual Democrats
Will Follow Own
Judgment

Underwood, Hitchcock
Vote in Favor of Ratification

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Democrat Senators in conference today decided that the peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary were not matters for party action. Individual Democrats, it was said, would be left to follow their own judgment in voting on ratification.

The Democrats were said to be "widely divided" with a large number favoring than opposing ratification. The conference did not conclude its session today, and will meet again Thursday when the question of ratification probably will be considered.

Senator Underwood of Alabama, minority leader, and Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, ranking Democrat on the foreign relations committee, were reported to have led the discussion today in favor of ratification with Senator Hitchcock referring to reports in circulation that Mr. Wilson had expressed himself to one of two other Democratic Senators as against ratification, said he knew nothing about it.

Coincidentally with the Democratic conference, Senator Borah of Idaho, a Republican opponent of ratification, introduced a resolution requesting the Senate Department to advise the Senate whether the United States has any "representative or agent" serving in any capacity with allied members of the reparations commission.

CHARGE AGAINST ACTOR TODAY

Prosecution Suddenly
Closes Case

In distress in Arbuckle's apartment on September 5, had cried "I am dying. He hurt me." And that Arbuckle had told her to "shut up" or he would "throw her out the window."

"You're crazy. Shut up or I'll throw you out the window" was the cry of Arbuckle's remarks given by Miss Blake, while Miss Prevost testified "If you don't stop yelling I'll throw you out the window."

Both said that Arbuckle administered ice to Miss Rappe while she was working in pain. Miss Prevost said she accompanied it with the remark "That'll bring you to." The prosecution, however, drew testimony from Miss Blake which they said indicated there had been another ice incident.

Another exciting incident was told of by Josephine Keza, a maid at the St. Francis who said that from the corridor she heard screams from room 1219, the room described by other witnesses as the one in which Miss Rappe entered with Arbuckle and a woman's voice crying "No, no, oh my God." "Shut up" followed at the back of Miss Rappe's neck.

Arbuckle, who said she heard "screaming" all afternoon in room 1219, and "music, dancing and dkeors" in room 1220, where the party was assembled.

"Why did you listen in the corridor?" asked Dominguez.

"When I heard the screams, I ran and listened," she replied.

Men in Bath Robes.
Alice Blake told of finding Arbuckle and Lowell Sherman in bath robes and slippers. Arbuckle was wearing also pajamas and Sherman athletic underwear. Later on, she said Mrs. Delmont changed her street clothing for men's pajamas.

She corroborated the testimony of Zeh Prevost that Mrs. Delmont had knocked and kicked at the door of room 1219 and asked to be let in. Miss Blake however, said she did not see the first entrance made into that room, testifying that after an interval while she was in room 1221, she walked into 1219 and found Miss Rappe lying on a bed unclad.

Although Miss Prevost was unable to recollect a remark which Assistant District Attorney Milton U'Ren said he understood Mrs. Delmont made to Arbuckle about the ice, Miss Blake said she remembered Mrs. Delmont had said something about Arbuckle always taking everything as a joke.

Miss Blake testified to describe Arbuckle's acts in regard to the ice, and took advantage of the court's suggestion that she whisper it to the shorthand reporter.

Miss Prevost said the only times she saw any ice was when she observed it in a bowl in room 1220, again when Arbuckle brought in a piece of amuletator to Miss Rappe, and when some one put a bag of it at the back of Miss Rappe's neck.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—Reduced rates on vegetables from California points to New Orleans will be made by rail lines October 2. It was announced today. The new rate will be $1.40 a hundred pounds instead of $1.60.

She testified that she saw Miss Rappe take only one drink, but that when Miss Rappe entered the room into which Arbuckle followed her she "sort of skipped along." Miss Prevost described Mrs. Delmont's condition at the party as "drunk."

Foreign Minister Returns to Prague

PRAGUE, Sept. 27.—Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister, has returned from Brussels, where he conferred with M. Benoit, former foreign minister of Hungary, relative to the Hungarian controversy between Austria and Hungary. It is believed here that his mediation has been successful unless the Allies object to the general lines of the agreement.

It is understood that the proposals would involve the reformation of Hungarian forces from West Hungary, with a treaty by which Austria would return to Hungary the town of Odenburg, perhaps in exchange for economic concessions.

This settling together of Hungary, Austria and Czechoslovakia is regarded as one of the most important developments in Central Europe since the war, reflecting, according to some views, emancipation from the tutelage of the Allies.

Foreign Minister Returns to Prague

PRAGUE, Sept. 27.—Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister, has returned from Brussels, where he conferred with M. Benoit, former foreign minister of Hungary, relative to the Hungarian controversy between Austria and Hungary. It is believed here that his mediation has been successful unless the Allies object to the general lines of the agreement.

It is understood that the proposals would involve the reformation of Hungarian forces from West Hungary, with a treaty by which Austria would return to Hungary the town of Odenburg, perhaps in exchange for economic concessions.

This settling together of Hungary, Austria and Czechoslovakia is regarded as one of the most important developments in Central Europe since the war, reflecting, according to some views, emancipation from the tutelage of the Allies.

LAMP BREAKAGE COSTING MONEY

City's Bill Is Now $100 a Month

The city of Fresno has been losing more than $100 per month since the first of the year on account of destruction of the electric poles wrought by automobiles and breakage of electric lamps, either through the carelessness of vandals or the negligence of the public works department. The department of public works is now at the point of calling on the public for assistance in obtaining the money to replace the poles and electric lamps which are being destroyed. Each pole broken costs the city $75, and each electric globe costs $10 for replacement. Since the first of the year seven poles and 78 globes have been wrecked.

Persons who see electric poles smashed are requested to report the automobile number to the police department. The department of public works also asks the co-operation of the public in keeping out of the lights which for one reason or another may happen to go out of service. Residents of the city who observe that an electric pole is being destroyed, or that a globe is being smashed, are requested to telephone police department, giving the location of the electric lamp. The request to notify the police department comes from the department of public works, and is considered by the fact that there is no night telephone service in the public works office, while the police department is open all night.

FIRE BUREAU AID SOUGHT

Stevens' Objections to Be Made Clear

Members of the city fire commission hope to have from the chief of the fire prevention bureau of the National Board of Fire Underwriters a more detailed account of Stevens' objections to the proposed fire prevention ordinance by the next meeting of the fire commission.

Secretary Rankin yesterday sent the following letter to Stevens, upon instruction from the board:

"Dear Sir: Your letter of September 12 addressed to Chief W. C. Barkholtz, relative to our proposed Fire Prevention Ordinance has been referred to this board by the chief."

"In reference to the last part of your letter wherein you state: 'I am also of the opinion that more direct power should be given the fire marshal than is the case with this proposed ordinance. The Board of Fire Commissioners will appreciate it very much if you will kindly advise them which sections of this ordinance should be changed and what you would substitute, or if more convenient, would be glad for you to use the enclosed copy of the ordinance to strike out or add to as you think best.'"

"Thanking you for assisting in this matter and assuring you of our appreciation of the courtesies already extended, we remain,

NEED WORK; WANT IT

The claim that many men are not employed because they can not get work at the wages they demand, is true.

But it is also true that this social condition has little to do with the question of unemployment about which the conference at Washington is now studying.

If the members of that conference concern themselves with anything but the adjustment of masses of wages to gross opportunity for production at living returns, they will fail in their mission.

For the occasional refusal of a few hundreds or even a few thousands of men to accept a reduction in wages has nothing to do with the great proportion of unemployment that is now vexing the men who feel responsible for the public welfare.

In those rare instances where men for political or propagandist reasons are refusing to accept wage reductions, they have other means of maintenance. And it is notorious that men who are accepting the suggestion of their union that they quit their employment, nearly always add themselves at once either to the men who are at work, through getting some other job that does not conflict with the one that they left, or else that they seek other occupation elsewhere, at whatever wages they can.

The margin of unemployment is always composed of the men who are least active in getting employment. Their blame, if they have any is not due to purpose, but to temperament. They are of the type of men who are always just behind their fellows. They are ten minutes behind the other fellow in looking for work and in looking for every thing else. When there is plenty of work, they fall into it. When there is competition for work, they are unemployed.

On the face of it, the statement of the director of labor statistics in Massachusetts that unemployment is due to refusal to accept current wages, is a reflection of opinions caused by particular instances. On the other hand, the statement of the president of the ex-service men's employment bureau that there are 75,000 unemployed ex-service men in New York is a fact that is given illumination by his observation that it is the unskilled man who is out of a job and the skilled man who has no need for help.

The proportion of need for skilled and unskilled men does not vary greatly. We must go farther than the fact of skill as an explanation of employment. The man who has had the energy and the perseverance to obtain skill in a profession is usually the man with energy enough to rustle for a job when there is none in sight, and who has sense enough to accept any work to maintain himself while he is seeking a more congenial occupation.

The unemployment conference will do well if it does not go afieid seeking to use the unemployment situation to point a moral of some particular school of economists. Its purpose is plain. There is an unprofitable margin between the gross amount of labor available and the total opportunity to labor. This margin should be adjusted. And in addition to this, there should be as simple as possible a means for transferring the extra labor in one part of the country to the unsatisfied demand in another. To do these two things will be a sufficient cure for a situation that is by no means simple.

G. A. R. PASSING

Death is tragic only in its suddenness. We feel the shock of the unexpected. For what we are prepared, we have acquired a mantle of immunity to grief.

But there is a melancholy in the expected that tragic death can never have. The awfulness of the inevitable is unutterable. The turning of the wheel that brings us to the end, seen from afar, is to the thinking mind the most horrible in its predestination.

It is thus that, to certain minds, life itself is a total tragedy. From birth itself, they have the conviction of death. Instead of death being bitter because of its shutting off of life, it is dreaded because it is a part of life. Thought turns upon itself. For the very fact that happiness exists, it is sadness.

But to any of us, the menace of years comes with the greater force when it attaches to something that has had a greatness beyond the individual. There is a peculiar poignancy in the gradual folding of the hands of the Grand Army of the Republic. These are the men who as young boys fifty-seven or more years ago joined the army to save the Union. While the bitterness and the triumphs of that generation have long ago passed, its glory has been a very vital thing to us for nearly three score years. Now it is departing. The glory should be there, just as strongly as ever. But it is not. For glory must ever be personal. Triumph must be personal, in order to be human. Love as we may our land, we love it because we are human beings. And when we rejoice in those whom we have delighted to honor, we honor them most because they were men.

The Grand Army of the Republic is preparing for the long farewell. The most of its members have already been gathered to their fathers. They left behind both their opportunities and their satisfactions in them. As men they have been going. As an institution they have lived but are near death. There are more men and better Americans now in the United States than ever before. But there will never be another Grand Army of the Republic.

There is no tragedy now in the life of the American Legion. They have some incidental troubles, but they are aglow with living, the most of them with health, and with the satisfaction of ability to play their part as men in American life. We can look forward, through a half century, when the youngest of these men will be closing the book of the American Legion, adding up its debts and credits, and preparing for a "last will and testament." There is nothing very tragic about this thought, but there is a deep melancholy. And there is for us to wonder, a searching of our souls to know how, through the work of the American Legion and the work of the rest of us, what will be the account that will be passed on by the American Legion, in its final disposition in 1975.

The relationship of the Grand Army of the Republic to the people of the United States has been by no means so auspicious as that of the American Legion. The G. A. R. was compelled even more than the American Legion to meet with a post-war indifference on the part of the mass of people. Too much of the fervor of war was lost before the time for debt-paying arrived. But the dignity of the career of the G. A. R. has been something to be proud of. In its three score years, it has well represented the noble purposes which determined its membership. In writing its last will, it has the respect as well as the gratitude of a United Nation.

TO SHUT OUT THE LIGHT

The struggle being carried on between the Chicago Tribune and the Thompson political machine which has been for some years in charge of public affairs in Chicago, is one of striking importance to the entire people of the United States.

For the suit that has been brought against the Tribune in the name of the municipality is not intended as a means of "punishing" the Tribune. It is intended to "suppress" the Tribune.

The Tribune is not charged with a crime, it is charged with having done an injury to the financial standing of the city of Chicago. It is claimed that the attempts of the Tribune to require financial efficiency as well as political honesty from its servants has resulted in an impairment in the credit of the city.

Supposing that this were true! It would be the very best thing for the city of Chicago to have its credit impaired, if its credit rested simply on the ignorance of the public as to the nature of its solvency.

It is much as though a reputable merchant were to be arrested for defrauding his creditors. His credit would be "impaired." But the interests of the public would be subserved through the facts of his dishonesty being revealed.

The thing is a thousand times more important in public life. The interests of the general public are conserved through revelations of the truth.

There was a time in the history of our courts when the maxim was held "The greater the truth, the greater the libel." If you told the truth about a man, you were using the very strongest weapon you possessed against him, therefore you had done him the greatest injury and he had the right to obtain the greatest damages against you.

We have long given up this principle in law. Now the truth is a defense in a libel suit.

The truth, in the long run, will hurt only those who should be hurt.

The City of Chicago, under the management of the Thompson combination, is seeking to establish a new principle. This principle is that the "credit" of a city must not be attacked, even though the management of the city is corrupt, its departments inefficient, its officers enslaved to outside influences rather than to the public trust. Chicago is attempting, through its legal department, to declare that the "credit" of the city must not be questioned, even though its business is so rotten that it is bound to fail in the course of years any how.

What does this mean? It means that there should be no word spoken against the stealing of money from a city treasury until after it is all stolen. It means that no suggestion should be made about improving the management of the city until that management was so bad that it was unanimously condemned.

Men and institutions and newspapers alike should be held accountable for their actions. They should be held accountable under definite principles. They should be punished, when they have lied, or when they have been criminally careless in their statements. But they should be given as much leeway in freedom of speech as is useful to the public.

The City of Chicago through this suit is not seeking to punish the Tribune. It is asking for ten millions of dollars damages, a sum that would not be punitive, but destructive. It is asking this sum in the hope that the city administration can so frame the evidence that a verdict can be secured through the courts that will put an obnoxious newspaper out of existence.

The most prized possession of the American people today is its opportunity to get light about public affairs from its newspapers.

It has this opportunity, even though occasionally it is badly served by newspapers.

It would be a disaster to the American people if this opportunity were to be denied, as it would be denied if the courts should decide that telling of the truth about bad officials is an injury to the "credit" of the city.

The Roads

From the Open Road

At the time the cool of the evening drove away the heat

I came to the place where four roads meet; I looked to the eastward, I looked to the west, I pondered and wondered which road was best.

A long road led up the hill, with power at the top—Who undertakes to climb it must never wish to stop! A pleasant road led down the hill and through the deep grass—It is easy to follow when that way you pass!

A fair road led seaward—oh, ships call the heart! But you have love at home when by that road you start! Men upon a thousand roads were going to a town—They looked behind them sadly when the sun went down.

Oh, some passed that way, and some passed this. And for each thing they gained there was something to miss. A strange road was the road for me. I did not know. But which road was the road for me. I did not know.

Diplomats who make cutting remarks usually get blunt answers. The smaller the country, the more sensitive the pride of its ruler.

Let's see what was it they wrote paragraphs about when skirts were long? As a matter of fact, it is all work and no pay that makes Jack a dull boy.

A Mr. Rice in Florida has married a Mrs. Hays. What will the harvest be? The man with a smooth tongue seldom appears to advantage in a rough house.

Will the Least Important Speaker Block the Really Important Ones?

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

Talk

By their words, as well as by their works, ye shall know them.

No one can hear your thoughts. Every one can hear your words.

Do not be afraid to talk. The silent man is not necessarily the wise man.

Sometimes he is silent because he cannot think of anything to say.

The important thing is to think before you talk.

The chatterer has an idle mind. It hops from one subject to another, giving nothing any reflection.

If you think over what you have to say, you will talk sensibly.

And if you talk sensibly, you will get a reputation for intelligence.

Don't be afraid to ask questions. That is one of the best ways to get information.

But ask them because you want information, not because you are curious about things which do not concern you.

The amount of your neighbor's salary, or where he spends his evenings isn't any of your affairs.

But if he can tell you how he manufactures tea, toast or what kind of a statesman his friend Congressman Jones is, you will profit by asking him questions.

Talk about things you understand, if you undertake to volunteer information.

Don't be positive or opinionated.

Don't be disputatious.

If you happen to disagree with a man, it is not necessary to be offensive or defensive about it.

You get most of the information that doesn't come through books or work in your talk.

Make acquaintances, and talk to them, and with them. Listen a little more than you talk in every conversation.

If you are talking with wise and well informed men, listen most of the time.

But never get the idea that talk will hurt you. Talk well and cheerfully, and, if you can, informingly, and it will prove one of the best means you can find of helping you up in the world.

Fresno's Yesterdays

Taken from the Files of the FRESNO REPUBLICAN

Forty Years Ago Today

R. B. Terry has commenced the erection of a dwelling house on Merced street, opposite Judge Holmes' residence. It certainly speaks well for the good intentions of our young bachelors, that so many of them are preparing comfortable homes.

W. W. Phillips of Centerville, who lately returned from a trip through Napa and Sonoma counties, reports the grain crop in many localities very light.

The exhibit of wines at the Mechanics Fair, San Francisco, by the Eileen Vineyard, is attracting much attention and elicits favorable comments from all who examine it.

The attempt to enforce the Sunday law in Hanford has proved a failure, and the ill-feeling engendered has assumed considerable proportions.

Kutner & Goldstein are compelled to add 48x50 feet more to their warehouse to make room for the vast amount of grain they have purchased.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Burroughs of Jamestown, Tuolumne county, are in this city visiting Mrs. Burroughs' mother, Mrs. S. A. Bennett, in Belmont addition.

Dan Dismukes, H. V. Armitage and Henry Schadel will go to the Garner ranch on the south next Monday to try their luck at the ducks.

W. H. Robinson, formerly county superintendent of schools of Stanislaus but now a resident of this city, has gone to Modesto on a visit.

J. H. Carroll, manager of the City Street Improvement company of San Francisco, is in town.

Ten Years Ago Today

Fresno's First Fashion Show will open today. The big three days' display of all that is noblest, smartest, most correct and most desirable in things to wear will be on with a rush when the stores of this city open for business today.

The idle rich are merely a nuisance; but idle poor invariably threaten the established order.

The difficult part of the task is to lower government expenses while keeping up political fences.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Further Notes

On Heaton School

Fresno Republican: Judging from observations, most residents of the Normal school district are beginning to think that our illustrious and honorable school board should be sent to some plain mill and have a row splinters, knots and rough edges removed.

The conditions existing at the so-called Heaton school are nothing more or less than an insult to the name of school, not to speak of the little children attending.

Now, personally, I do not know the board members in detail, but I can say that most of them must be hearty mushroom eaters, for they have selected a wonderful field for the growth of the delicious fungus.

Alas, the in profusion should be on this lovely piece of land, which, by the way, is bounded geographically as follows: On the north by a dirty pig pen, on the west by antiquated unsightly toilets, and on the east by dust up to one's ankles.

On the south, thank Providence, there are a few nice Thompson seedless grapes, the only feature about the place worthy of real Fresno growth. Situated in the center of this attractive spot we have our school in which our children are taught to the soothing hum of the house fly.

These buildings, three in number, in which our children are housed, are in short nothing but dilapidated shacks.

At present I understand that some four hundred dollars is being spent to put them in order. Imagine! Four hundred dollars is being lavishly expended on our little Ab-Normal school. Something must be done to remedy the situation. Not next year, but now.

Two weeks have already elapsed and there has not been a text-book issued any of the children to date. Now I would like to ask the question, whose fault is this? Is it gross negligence on our school board's part; if not, who is to blame? Surely the citizens have granted and paid every school fund cheerfully, so why not let us have the proper buildings and the proper surroundings?

In conclusion, I would write a few words to the mothers and fathers of the children. If your son or daughter comes home with some little boy or girl some day and you notice that the little visitor seems to have freckles, examine him or her closely; they are not freckles. Cowdies, mauls, cowfies! DR. FRANCH V. RANDOLPH, 1016 College Avenue, Fresno.

The working people are told that times are getting better all the time—that is a fact—indeed, as bankers, railroads, etc., are concerned—but to the laboring man and woman of the land, the only change they can discover is a general reduction in wages, caused by the big interests, to which wages rent, groceries and necessities remain at the same old war time prices.

I have nothing against the bankers. They are a necessity which the country could not do without, but the excessive display of wealth and luxury does look out of place at this particular time.

The poor we will always have with us. But none but the rich enjoy life. Such acts as mentioned above only add to the unrest and discontent now prevailing. But a day of reckoning is sure to come.

THOUGHTS

VICE PRESIDENTS

(From the Oakland Tribune)

The vice president has been heard from before. It was the rumor, but the fact is that the vice president has been heard from before. It was the rumor, but the fact is that the vice president has been heard from before.

The statement credited to the elder Morgan that a bear on the United States is sure to go broke reflects to a profound degree the questionable part of confidence which forms an engaging feature of our national character.

"PUT THE I IN IDEA"

(From the Boston Transcript)

"Personalize your thought," says a philosophical sharp in the paragraph. In other words, put the "I" in the idea.

RUSH FOR EDUCATION

(From the New York Times)

"In any period of industrial depression," says the Commissioner of Education in Massachusetts, "enrollment in higher institutions, both secondary schools and colleges, is likely to be increased considerably."

This may seem a paradox, but it has proof in spite of the fact of living and of a pretty general increase in tuition fees, no fewer than seventeen colleges and universities in New England report the largest freshman classes in their history, and many of them report an even larger number of those who have been turned

A Final Warning

The Fair season is now upon us And I'm taking My pen in hand, As the saying is, To tell the folks In high authority In this here town That if they permit Another Carnival Company To hold forth In the corner of the park Like they permitted Last Raisin Day That I'm going down To Frank Homan's And rent a gun With two barrels And buy a box of shells Loaded with buckshot— And get busy. I live very close To that corner. And there is yet hearing In the ears of me And I'm telling the world And our folks in authority That at that time I stood enough barking From a lot of dogs And enough wheezing From a steam piano And enough shouts From Hoochy-Coochy boosters To last me The rest of my days. Enough is enough Of anything And I got that. During the Raisin Festival. Music bath chairs, According to the poet, To soothe the savage beast

But I kept getting Savager and savager All of the time. Listening to that piano Playing across the street. I got so worked up And infuriated That I had difficulty Living with myself And any goodwile In the whole world Can tell from that How hard it must have been For anybody else To stay around there. I appreciate the fact That money must be made During these carnival times And that most folks Wont loosen up For hot dogs And sody pop And Indian blankets Made in South Bend, Ind., And for brief glimpses Of Hawaiian wiggling ones, And all such-like, Unless steam pianos And loud-voiced barkers Are making a noise, I get all this, But still and all, I serve notice That from this time on I want this music And this noise To be far removed From under the window Of my apartment, Or I'll give A fancy exhibition Of a long-legged lad Running amuck.

When Mulai Hafid goes to war No rifles-blaze their fiery-breath, No bombing squadrons sweep before To scare the enemy to death. His guns are parked in their garage, He needs them not to voice his wrath; Nor does he need a fierce barrage To sweep an army from his path. Not he; he writes a rhyming verse Upon the hated foe's head And when the latter reads the verse Invariably it knocks him dead.

We wonder often what he writes— This talented Moroccan bard, What form of verse it is that smites A well armed enemy so hard. What rhymes are these that men but read When they are taken from the mail A single time, and then proceed To shudder and turn deadly pale? If verse contains the power to lay The instruments of war on shelves, We think perhaps that we some day May be a general ourselves.

And yet, although we've put our heart In curses wrought with cunning rhyme, And toiled upon this noble art Of late in all our leisure time, We cannot somehow catch the knack; The folks to whom we send the stuff Are prone too often to come back And when they do to get too rough. The thing has worried us a bit, It's put a dent in our conceit, Try as we will, we must admit That Mr. Hafid has us beat!

If Tennessee here could have gotten prices for his farm crops relatively as high as the prices of things he has had to buy in town, he would probably have raised the mortgage by himself. His case in this respect is typical of that of thousands of other farmers.

More Truth Than Poetry

Puzzled

Mulai Hafid, before going to war, launches a rhymed curse on his enemies, thereby in many cases licking them before a shot is fired.

When Mulai Hafid goes to war No rifles-blaze their fiery-breath, No bombing squadrons sweep before To scare the enemy to death. CAR SHORTAGE REPORTED HERE

Both Railroads Feel
Demands

Shortage of cars for shipment of fresh fruit is being felt severely by shippers from the Fresno district, according to information given out yesterday. The Pacific Fruit Express, it was learned, is at the present time running from 60 to 70 per cent short of its orders for reefers. The Santa Fe, reported that on yesterday it filled its orders for cars 100 per cent, but about ten days ago there was a "lean" period of two days. What the situation will be during the next few days, railroad men were unwilling to predict.

Fruit men claimed that the car shortage was general throughout the valley. In the meantime, reports yesterday indicated a slight advance in prices of grapes during the past week.

SUE TO COLLECT MONEY.
Suits to collect money due were filed yesterday in the superior court by Attorney G. L. Ayneaworth on behalf of the Valley Lumber company, against Gurbab Tahliolan and W. W. Adams.

Failure to Pay Rent Brings on Suit for Divorce

Because her husband would not pay the rent on their apartment necessitating their removal, Bessie Raypholtz yesterday filed suit for divorce in the superior court against Harry D. Raypholtz. The plaintiff alleges that her husband showed an indisposition to work and that he led a life of idleness since their marriage. She states that she has suffered great mortification as the result of their ejection from the apartment.

The couple were married in Fresno April 14, 1917, and separated three years later. Mrs. Raypholtz asks $20 a month alimony for the support of one minor child.

LEE YICK CASE TO JURY TODAY

Attorneys Start Their Arguments

The case of Lee Yick, charged with aiding and abetting in the murder of Pook Kee on June 7, will go to the jury this afternoon at the conclusion of the closing arguments of the defense and prosecution attorneys.

Accusatory testimony was offered yesterday morning by the prosecution. The witnesses attempted to impeach the statements of defense witnesses by testifying that various defense witnesses were in places other than stated by them during the shooting and stabbing on the evening of June 7.

District Attorney H. W. Gearhart and O. L. Swartz, who are conducting the prosecution, made the opening arguments after the noon recess yesterday. They briefly reviewed testimony that had been offered by both sides, pointing out main facts which tended to show that Lee Yick gave the orders for the killing of Pook Kee.

Attorneys R. C. Hestrick and Herbert McQuinn, for the defense, made the closing arguments to the jury yesterday. Mr. Hestrick will conclude this morning.

District Attorney Gearhart will close the case for the state. In his argument he will go carefully over all testimony offered by parties, placing stress on the fact that various defense witnesses gave contradictory testimony. Judge S. L. Strother will read his instructions to the jury when Gearhart has closed, and the case will be reached before tonight.

The trial has already consumed eight days in which time 42 witnesses were examined, 19 for the prosecution, 14 for the defense, and eight by the prosecution in rebuttal. The cost of the trial is not known but it was said that it will exceed that of the Wong Toy trial, which was more than $5000.

It is possible for the jury to return one or five verdicts in the case, guilty of murder in the first degree with the death penalty, with life imprisonment, murder in the second degree, manslaughter or not guilty.

Man Is Convicted of Store Burglary

After 10 minutes' deliberation, a jury in Judge Beaumont's department of the superior court yesterday found Pedro Sanchez guilty of burglary in the second degree. Sentence will be pronounced Thursday.

Sanchez was charged with the burglary of a store in Kingsburg on June 18 and where he is said to have taken articles of clothing and novelties. Although Sanchez denied that he had been previously convicted, Immigration Inspector Moore stated that Sanchez had been convicted of burglary in Arizona where he served a term in prison. Upon his release he was deported into Mexico but later returned coming to Fresno county where the second burglary was committed. Moore stated that Sanchez will be deported upon his release from prison. Assistant District Attorney H. J. Carling and Deputy J. C. Hammett conducted the prosecution. Hugh P. Graves handled the defense.

Judgment in the form of a temporary injunction against the defendants' crops is asked. The firm of H. J. Johnson, Wiley and Griffith represents the plaintiff, Judas Strathairn and Cashin will head the action.

NAZIM BLY FORFEITS LIFE
Sacrifices Life To Save Army Branch

HEADQUARTERS TURKISH NATIONALIST ARMY, Sept. 26.—Colonel Nazim Bly, with his Fourth Battalion, lost his life and saved the main body of General Ismet Pasha's forces from being taken in the rear and possibly routed during the frontal attack made with superior forces and equipment by the Greeks in the Kutahia zone.

In recognition of his services, General Ismet Pasha published a note to the army stating that, in his entire military career, including also his knowledge of military history, he knew of no finer example of heroism and intelligent valor. He also paid high tribute to the remnants of Colonel Nazim's division remaining after standing for two days against three Greek divisions, any one of which was stated to be superior in numbers to that of Nazim.

The Greeks had planned, in addition to the frontal attack on Kutahia, a surprise raid on the Turkish rear with three flying divisions, and the surprise appears to have been complete.

So soon as their presence in force was discovered, Nazim Bey was detached from the main army to stop them, or halt their progress until the retreat from Kutahia could be effected. He did so, and during these 48 hours of constant fighting and retreating, he was wounded by a rifle bullet but kept on his feet until struck by a second bullet, toward the end of the fight. He died but with the knowledge that he had saved the main body of the army. "Kismet" (his fate) were his last words.

Colonel Nazim Bey was a short, thin man of 45 years, quiet and gentlemanly in his deportment, speaking but rarely with a large head and thoughtful, melancholy gray eyes. A soldier by profession, he served during the general war on several of the fronts, but mostly on the Russian. He would have borne the title of general as division commander, under the old imperial army but the Nationalists have suppressed that title except for officers commanding more than an army corps.

Honolulu Finds Husband Beater

HONOLULU, Sept. 27.—Honolulu has a husband beater. His name is Mrs. Chung Sau, an Hawaiian, who was summoned to court where he exhibited a scar on his forehead and wounds on his back, inflicted, he said, by his wife. He said she had several times threatened to kill him.

The wife, who was considerably larger than he, was fined $5. The court ordered that their five children be taken from the mother's home to a safe place.

WINE MANUFACTURED HERE
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 26.—The wine making season is on in the Sixth Internal Revenue district here, and indications are that only 2,000,000 gallons of wine will be manufactured under permit compared with 4,000,000 in 1919. Manufacture of wine by large concerns will be limited to two or three wineries, others have arranged to dry the grapes. There have been many applications by private families under the 200 gallon limit.

Shakespeare And Bible Bar Tests

DAYTON, O., Sept. 27.—All candidates for admission to the bar should be compelled to pass examinations on the Bible and the works of Shakespeare, in the opinion of Daniel W. Idings, former president of the Ohio Bar Association. Mr. Idings has urged that all bar organizations insist upon passage of such examinations as prerequisite to the taking of the bar examination proper and recommends also that candidates be quizzed on Blackstone's Commentaries.

"The source of all law really is the Bible while Shakespeare pointedly brings out the fallacies of the law," declares Mr. Idings. Blackstone's Commentaries, he says, should be read by every lawyer at some time during his career, for "it must ever remain the greatest exposition of what the Anglo-Saxon Law really is."

"Such examinations would compel the reading and study of these great literary masterpieces," Mr. Idings continues, "and certainly no man can read and understand the Bible without being benefited morally, and the same is true, although in a lesser degree, of Shakespeare. The best duty of bar organizations is insisting upon early and universal action on this important subject."

Makes Provision For Pallbearer's Whisky

MONTROSE, Colo., Sept. 26.—Paying "Nearer, My God, to Thee," through the cemetery today to the funeral procession for William McFarland, the band struck up "And We Did Part," returning from the cemetery. This program was in accordance with provisions of the dead man's will which also provided that each of the pallbearers receive a gallon of whisky.

The reading and study of these great literary masterpieces," Mr. Idings continues, "and certainly no man can read and understand the Bible without being benefited morally, and the same is true, although in a lesser degree, of Shakespeare. The best duty of bar organizations is insisting upon early and universal action on this important subject."

THE FRESNO ADVERTISING CLUB
INCREASES THE RESULTS FROM YOUR ADVERTISING

BECAUSE of the quiet-but-constant activity of a Vigilance Committee of the Fresno Advertising Club, misleading advertising in Fresno is being reduced to a minimum.

This committee is ever on the alert to catch and investigate any advertising or sales statement that may be false or exaggerated. Usually it is only necessary to call the offender's attention to this deviation from "Truth in Advertising" to have the error at once corrected. If, however, he should persist in his mistaken policy, legal steps would be taken to force him to change his business methods. To date no legal action has been required.

As a result of this activity all legitimate and truthful advertising has increased in value, for the buying public has come to learn that most of the advertising done by Fresno firms is honest—and acts accordingly.

MURPHY BEATS CONSPIRACY IN LE MANS RACE

American Driver Tells of His Work in Grand Prix Attempted to Make Him Stop at Turns in Route

By ROBERT C. MIDDLETON

Behind beating the world's greatest pilots driving the cream of the mechanical creations of the world's famous American, Jimmy Murphy, in winning the Grand Prix at Le Mans, France, about six weeks ago also beat a conspiracy.

The story of the epoch-making race has been told in the press from the time it was first described by high paid writers and foreign correspondents, but the complete story, as known only to the American winner himself and a few friends, was not told until yesterday for the first time.

On top of the unsportsmanlike scheme, believed by the American drivers to have been framed to defeat Murphy out of the race by a plot of "risky" strategy, Murphy, who is here for the San Joaquin Valley classic run of next Saturday at the Fresno fair, told of a series of other "peculiar" circumstances, as he described them, which the American racers were called on to face in France.

"From the minute we landed in France, and everybody was against us," said Murphy at the Hotel Fresno last night in recounting, without malice, his experiences abroad.

By Customs. "In the first place the French customs service wanted to charge us a duty amounting to 45 per cent of the value of our cars. So far as we know this is the only time in the history of the world that such a duty has been levied on automobiles.

"We finally compromised this by putting up a bond of 100,000 francs, at normal rate of exchange about $22,000.

"Then followed a series of other popular discouragements in which we lost much valuable time and incidentally some of our supposedly smooth American temper. At Le Mans there was a terrible system of adverse propaganda against us.

"Even the American papers declared that the American cars were poor, but that the European cars were good. With Europe's greatest pilots and were meeting them in their own game, road racing. They didn't figure me at all because I was all bugged up, having just got out of the hospital, I entered the race all bugged up, but the farther I went the better I felt.

"We were there to win and we were meeting the same determined race as the European cars, especially the French drivers and factories, who realized the loss of prestige to their name and product should they be beaten by foreign cars in their own sport of road racing. Incidentally there was only one prize in the race so it was win or nothing.

"Early in the race I discovered that at the bad turns, and there were a lot of them, there were a bunch of fellows who would motion to us to stop on it, as though our cars were going to stop on it, right behind us.

"After talking for it once I saw through their scheme and thereafter took every turn, skimming in on the inside and out, negotiating the turns. Their hope was that we would take the turns, literally chase us into the turn, running us off the course or causing an accident.

"Then the doughy little driver, who won in the face of almost insuperable handicaps including a flat tire and mechanical trouble, caused by stones cutting into the radiator, and some of his impressions of the race.

"Later, after the race, I discovered through two American women, who were members of our party, that they had overheard in the room adjoining them the hatching up of a plot to beat us and in it this thing of stationing men at the turns and motioning us on was just one of the tricks to be resorted to. Other independent investigation convinces me that it was more than a circumstance, that it was actually a conspiracy," Murphy continued.

Last to Be Told.

"At a banquet given by the Automobile Club of France the evening after the race and arranged a week before as a tribute to the winner, no matter whom he might be, Murphy was the last of the drivers to be toasted, although he was the guest of honor. This did not suit him, as he felt that he should be the first to be toasted, and they retired before the festivities were concluded.

According to Murphy, the race was so apparent that the French, the chief French driver in the big contest, De Palma and other notable figures both in and out of the racing game came to him and apologized.

As a result of this treatment Murphy's friends say he has made a resolution never to race again abroad, and that he is supported in this attitude by a number of other top-notch American drivers.

"Murphy also announced yesterday that he was now 'on his own,' having purchased the Duesenberg car with which he won the Grand Prix. He is making certain changes and improvements in the car through which he hopes to perceptibly increase its speed and lessen the possibilities of mechanical trouble.

Accompanying the world's champion driver from the south was Joe Thomas, whose whole cognomen is Joseph H. Thomas, one of the most noted drivers of the country. While the best of friends they expressed the determination individually to win the forthcoming race, being satisfied to award to the other the next coveted prize.

New Records Are Set at Fresno Event

Little have some fine specimens in the stable. This breed is a combination of the dairy and beef stock in one. They make good milk tests and are above the average in producers and the calves reach maturity for veal readily, and in the event of turning the cow over to the butcher in old age, the milking shorthorns make splendid beef cattle.

Charles Weaver is here from his Tulare ranch with his herd including North Star, his herd bull, which has won many ribbons in his class, and was champion last year at the state fair, and was senior champion at Portland.

The Weaver herd has competition this year at this as well as at other fairs in the state. In the herd of J. D. Rowe & Sons of Davis, with their milking shorthorns, many of which are of the red variety and some red ones. The firm has their herd bull Innerfall Favorite, and also a prize cow, Belle-vue Daisy, both of which have won many honors in this and other years.

Herds of Ayrshires.

One of the real attractive exhibits in the cattle section is the Ayrshire herd of the Birkshire Farm at Escalon. There is both beauty and quality in this breed, and it is shown for the first time this year. There are thirteen animals, chief among which is Birkshire Masterpiece, a junior bull. He is one of three pordoon animals, the others being Polly Foss Third and Natherton's Queen.

Great Swine Exhibit.

Perhaps the finest swine exhibit ever shown in the state is the one at the Fresno fair this year. There are 20 fine large animals, many of them weighing from 700 to 900 pounds, with some monster sows and boars of all the five breeds on exhibition.

The largest class of swine is the Poland-China breed, with about 150 animals in the pens. Those include the big black ones, while one exhibitor, Jas. Webster, of Madras, is showing spotted Poland.

Other exhibitors in this class are

Three Policemen Required to Quell Fighting Amazon

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—It took three powerful policemen to put one struggling woman in a patrol wagon yesterday, according to records at police headquarters.

The woman, Mrs. Ethel Ozone, was mad, or rather, plainly angered. She resisted the efforts of the three officers to the extent of faying them none to gently with her fists, feet and teeth. Neighbors asserted that she had been raising a disturbance. It was on the complaint of Mrs. R. Rodriguez that Police Sergeant Frank Hurlin and Officers G. C. Kaye and Thomas Stevenson were sent to 1132 L street to arrest Mrs. Ozone on a warrant charging her with disturbing the peace.

Instead, "a helpless woman," the officers found, it is claimed, "a fighting Amazon." It took them several minutes to put the nervous woman in the patrol wagon and take her to the city hall, where she was locked up. And after the first of the serious lines of their son, Holland, he was operated upon shortly after their arrival for appendicitis and was still in a very serious condition when last heard from. Mrs. Senter will remain with him until he is able to be brought home.

Do you discriminate at the dining table—or are you thoughtless?

In thousands of homes, a "line" is drawn at the breakfast table. Tea or coffee is served for "grown-ups" and Postum for children. But some parents do not discriminate. Caffeine and tannin, the injurious contents of coffee and tea, seriously retard the development of the delicate nerve tissues in children.

Consequently, instead of rich, satisfying Postum, children are over stimulated by the drugs in tea and coffee; and so may grow up irritable and nervous. Any doctor can tell you that this is a great evil and should be corrected.

Although some parents feel a certain justification for the personal indulgence in coffee, yet the harm to them may be equally serious. It may take a little while longer for the drugs in coffee and tea to affect an older person, but in many cases the nervous system and allied bodily functions will become weakened. The surest way to avoid such possibilities is to quit coffee entirely and drink Postum instead. The change permits you to get sound, restful sleep.

Postum is the well-known, meal-time beverage. Like thousands of others you will like it because, in flavor, it is much like a high-grade coffee.

Do away with the distiction at the table. Serve delicious Postum, piping hot, to all the family. One week's trial and it is likely that you'll never return to tea and coffee.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Do you discriminate at the dining table—or are you thoughtless?

In thousands of homes, a "line" is drawn at the breakfast table. Tea or coffee is served for "grown-ups" and Postum for children. But some parents do not discriminate. Caffeine and tannin, the injurious contents of coffee and tea, seriously retard the development of the delicate nerve tissues in children.

Consequently, instead of rich, satisfying Postum, children are over stimulated by the drugs in tea and coffee; and so may grow up irritable and nervous. Any doctor can tell you that this is a great evil and should be corrected.

Although some parents feel a certain justification for the personal indulgence in coffee, yet the harm to them may be equally serious. It may take a little while longer for the drugs in coffee and tea to affect an older person, but in many cases the nervous system and allied bodily functions will become weakened. The surest way to avoid such possibilities is to quit coffee entirely and drink Postum instead. The change permits you to get sound, restful sleep.

Postum is the well-known, meal-time beverage. Like thousands of others you will like it because, in flavor, it is much like a high-grade coffee.

Do away with the distiction at the table. Serve delicious Postum, piping hot, to all the family. One week's trial and it is likely that you'll never return to tea and coffee.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
